FROM NELL'S KITCHEN

Boiled, then fried—two simple steps that turn potatoes into something special.

INGREDIENTS

- 1½ kg medium potatoes
- Salt and freshly ground black pepper, to taste
- Vegetable oil, for deep-frying

METHOD

1. Wash the potatoes and place them whole in a large saucepan. Cover with cold water and bring to a boil.
2. Reduce to a steady simmer and cook for approximately 25–35 minutes, depending on their size, until tender when pierced with a knife but not falling apart.
3. Drain thoroughly and leave to steam-dry and cool until comfortable to handle. Peel if desired.
4. Using your hands, gently break each potato into generous, irregular pieces, approximately 4–5 cm across. Keep the rough edges intact rather than smoothing them or breaking the potatoes into crumbs.
5. Spread the pieces on a tray and allow any remaining surface moisture to dry. Season gently with salt and pepper.
6. Heat the vegetable oil in a deep-fryer or a deep, heavy saucepan to 180°C. If using a saucepan, fill it no more than halfway with oil.
7. Carefully lower the potato pieces into the oil in small batches. Fry for approximately 5–8 minutes, turning as needed, until deeply golden and crisp.
8. Lift out with a slotted spoon and drain on a wire rack set over a tray. Let the oil return to temperature before adding the next batch.
9. Taste and add a little more seasoning if needed. Serve immediately alongside beef fillet and sauce, grilled meat or creamy chicken.

Tip

Choose potatoes of a similar size. They will cook more evenly when boiled whole.
